ROUTES DU BONHEUR Belgium, Luxembourg, Lorraine: the charm of medieval towns

From romantic Bruges to the small villages of Lorraine, via the historic city of Luxembourg, our Route de Bonheur winds intricately through a world of medieval architecture. From historic towns to canals, from cobble streets to belfries, hear a carillon of 47 bells, or listen as medieval poetry is recited. Between these three border countries, Europe still resonates between modernity and the charms of the Middle Ages.

Although traces of the Middle Ages are arguably less numerous than in other cities of the province of Flanders, they have nonetheless left a strong impression on the architecture of modern Brussels. From the Coudenberg Palace to the impressive Tour de Villers and Porte de Hal, via the surprising 'Hôtel des Monnaies' metro station, where you'll find reconstructed ramparts of the former city walls, Brussels is and remains medieval.
