The Dreamland Resort

Hotel and restaurant in the woods. In the South China Sea, between Hong Kong and Macau, the island of Dawanshan is an island of fishermen and one of the few inhabited in the archipelago that bears part of its name. This tiny paradise is home to Dreamland Resort, which stands on the hillside surrounded by lush rainforest. Designed to meld into its surroundings, it blends sleek contemporary lines with traditional Chinese decor in a series of interlacing terraces and gardens overlooking the bay and port. From the spectacular infinity pool, let your gaze wander amid the sky and the ocean as you listen to the lulling sounds of the waves and birdsong. With each day, enjoy freshly caught fish served in a myriad of delicately prepared dishes.

Tate Dining Room & Bar

Restaurant in town. Creative to the core, chef Vicky Lau has made cooking her platform for artistic expression. Trained in graphic design before taking the path of gastronomy, she conceives her dishes as “stories that can be eaten”, creating with each one a sensorial and emotional experience. The finest ingredients are selected to deliver a revisited Chinese cuisine with a hint of French influence, as in the “Ode to foie gras”, where Miéral duck is sublimated with a foie gras mousse and plum sauce. Great attention is given to the remarkable wine list, as well as to the restaurant’s discreet and elegant decor and the staging of the dishes.

Villa 32

Hotel and restaurant in town. It has been more than a century since the first hot springs hotel opened in Taiwan, and it became a destination thanks to the healing properties of the water. Villa 32 builds on this tradition and enhances it further by drawing on the delights of nature that surround it. Located in Beitou, tucked away between impressive mountains in a geothermal valley, this spacious villa has only five rooms – each with its own hot springs tub. Ming-Hong Chiu has succeeded in crafting a delicate and relaxing atmosphere by artfully combining the surrounding natural elements: water, wood, trees and stone, in the midst of lush vegetation covered in mist from the hot springs.
