

ROUTES DU BONHEUR Snowdonia to Cumbria: a journey from the Welsh countryside, the valleys of the Yorkshire Dales to the Lakes

In homage to nature in all its verdant greenery, this journey winds between the valleys, plains and mountains from Wales to the north of England. These lands, studded with lakes and walking paths, lead to the hidden treasures of Hadrian's Wall, passing by the extraordinary Lake District National Park and Scafell Pike, the highest point in the country.

Grantley Hall

Hotel and restaurant in the country. Following the path of the River Skell, past mature woods and a lake, Grantley Hall will leave you in awe. This stately manor house, with its honey-hued stone, immediately exudes an aura of serenity. From the rooms, a feeling of majesty will take hold as you gaze out over the surroundings. The view from the bath in the Royal Suite gives onto vast parkland and the estate's beautiful gardens on thirty-eight acres. For a pastoral stroll, could anything be better than the Yorkshire Dales? Amid hills covered with heather moors, each of the valleys has its own charm, its own flowered stream, its own dry stone walls. Back at Grantley Hall, the elegant drawing room and oak-panelled bar promise an evening of cosiness and warmth, the perfect cap to a day outdoors.

Farlam Hall Hotel & Restaurant

Hotel and restaurant in the country. In the heart of picturesque Cumbria, in the northwest of England, Farlam Hall is a haven of peace bordered by ancient trees, many of which are reflected in the estate's ponds. This discreet yet elegant country manor will delight nature lovers and city dwellers looking for a recuperative countryside break far from the frenzy of modern life. The area is a renowned walker's paradise, with the magnificent North Pennines mountain range and Hadrian's Wall just a short drive away. The park and gardens of Farlam Hall reveal a unique beauty, season after season, while the cozy and warm atmosphere of its shared spaces invite you to forget the passage of time. Decorated with typically English furniture, its bright rooms and suites invite relaxation and rest. In Cedar Tree Restaurant, the chef prioritizes locally sourced, seasonal produce, some of which is grown directly in the property's own kitchen gardens, to deliver creative and delicious cuisine.
